Christian Reinewald was born in 1955 in Amsterdam, where he was brought up and studied at the Spinoza Lyceum. He has a diploma in painting and graphic arts from the Gerrit Rietveld Academie. He started writing about culture and art as a freelance journalist and photographer for the monthly magazine Plug. Some of his articles and photos have been published by BBK-krant, Vrij Nederland, Museumjournaal and recently by the Amsterdam newspaper Het Parool and Arts Review, London. He also cooperated in writing a catalogue of the Aorta/Beelstroom exhibition. Between 1982 and 1984 he took part in exhibitions in Amsterdam, Bussum and Den Bosch; two were organized by Museum Fodor and Aorta. The latter artist-space also presented his first solo-exhibition of collages and assemblages, June 1984. At present he tries to combine his journalistic work with his activities as a visual artist.
